a very timely treatment of one of mankind s most important topics tyler cowen george mason university us this important and highly original book explores the application of economics to the subject of hate via such diverse topics as war terrorism road rage witchcraft mania marriage and divorce and bullying and harassment as yet there is no overall economic approach to hate

Samuel Cameron pioneers this work by using standard neo-classical economics concepts of the utility maximizing consumer and the entrepreneur. He examines emotions as a form of personal capital and hate as a form of negative social capital and investigates the idea of a modular matrix of hatred as the appropriate means of examining the subject. The likely form and scope of future effects of hate on government policy are also discussed, seeking to explore the dimensions of hate as a commodity. From a wider economic perspective, this exceptional book will prove a fascinating read for those with an interest in the economic value of hatred in particular and the economics of the unusual more generally.
